OPENING OF OUR STUDENT LIBRARY

The Private Hotel School in Stellenbosch celebrated the opening of its restaurant and student library on Monday along with prominent local and international guests. Among the hospitality industry luminaries who attended were veteran US hotelier Ali Kasikci and his wife Donanne, along with former Witwatersrand hotel school chief executive Dr Reinier Mornet and the heads of several of Cape Town's top hotels. A special guest at the event was Kasikci close family friend Hal David, legendary American writer of songs including 'Raindrops keep fallin' on my head', and his wife Eunice. As a guest speaker at the event, Dr Mornet held high praise for The Private Hotel School. He gave an overview of the South African hospitality industry, ranking The Private Hotel School as "within the top six" of the country's 38 hotel schools. He said a degree programme in the planning would only add to the institution's prominence....read more

OPENING OF 33 DINE

The opening weekend of 33 Dine was a success. We had wonderful guests, most of whom were genuine foodies. It's marvellous to see the pleasure foodies get from awesome food. At least three groups of guests came all the way from Cape Town. Apparently this is quite unusual, so we feel really privileged.

The unusual menu items generated interest. The pink peppercorn meringue with berry sorbet and white chocolate ice cream became an instant hit. We were told it can never be removed from the menu. The Springbok loin with tarragon and coffee served with couscous did likewise become an instant favourite. The menu will morph over time, so expect other unusual dishes amongst the classics. We received valuable feedback from some of the guests. We are pleased they felt comfortable to share their opinions with us and hope that will continue...read more
